Claire Shepherd and Clive Hilliker assisted with a range of key tasks that made the initial concept of this book a reality. Dave Watts, Julian Robinson and a number of other colleagues kindly provided images for this book.

Our research on restored woodlands has been supported by many organisations over the past few decades. These include:

- The Murray Catchment Management Authority
- The Commonwealth Environmental Research Facility (CERF) (AEDA hub)
- The Australian Research Council
- Land and Water Australia
- The Natural Heritage Trust
- The Caring for our Country grants scheme (in collaboration with the Victorian Department of Sustainability and Environment)
- The North East Catchment Management Authority
- The Thomas Foundation
- The ACT Government
- The NSW Department of Environment, Climate Change and Water
- The Canberra Ornithologists Group
- The Bass Coast Landcare Network
- The Ecological Society of Australia.

David Lindenmayer would like to thank key members of his field team, particularly Mason Crane, Christopher MacGregor, Damian Michael, Rebecca Montague-Drake and Sachiko Okada. Nicola Munro thanks, in particular, Joern Fischer, Kimberlie Rawlings, Moragh McKay, Geoff Trease, Paul Spiers and Dave Blair for their role in improving revegetation for wildlife and learning how to be effective restorationists.

We thank John Manger from CSIRO Publishing, whose support and encouragement with this project is deeply appreciated.
