

Acknowledgments

We thank the following workers at North Carolina State University: James R. Baker, for his generous assistance with photography; Robert L. Blinn, for advice, encouragement and review of portions of the manuscript, especially the keys; Valerie Knowlton, for printing the photos; Ronald J. Kuhr, for review of the manuscript with particular attention to some of the more tedious sections; Herbert H. Neunzig, for advice and review of the manuscript and for sharing his expertise in German; Magda Sobanski, for transcribing label information from hundreds of specimens; Jon M. Stucky, for his botanical assistance and review of this work; and Brian M. Wiegmann, for great assistance in the phylogenetic analyses and for helpful comments on the manuscript.

We are indebted to Manfred Asche (Zentralinstitut Museum für Naturkunde, Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin, Germany), for advice on issues related to delphacid phylogeny; Robert W. Brooks (Snow Entomological Museum Collection, Lawrence, Kansas), for the prompt loan of types and thousands of specimens; Robert F. Denno (University of Maryland, College Park), for encouragement and unpublished host and specimen records from his research collection; K. G. Andrew Hamilton (Canadian National Collection of Insects, Ottawa, Ontario), for specimens and enthusiastic encouragement; Lois B. O'Brien, for encouragement, reviewing the manuscript, and lending specimens from her extraordinary collection (LOBC, Tallahassee, Florida); Stewart B. Peck (Carleton University, Ottawa, Canada), for lending specimens from the Galápagos Islands; Stephen W. Wilson (Central Missouri State University, Warrensburg), for lending specimens, reviewing the manuscript, and advice on numerous technical issues; and Thomas K. Wood (University of Delaware, Newark), for encouragement and the generous use of his laboratory facilities.

We also thank the following individuals and institutions for lending specimens (see list of acronyms under Materials and Methods): R. T. Schuh (AMNH); D. Azuma and J. K. Gelhaus (ANSP); M. D. Webb (BMNH); S. E. Miller and K. Arakaki (BPBM); N. Penny and K. Ribardo (CASC); J. E. Rawlings (CMNH); E. R. Hoebeke (CUIC); D. S. Chandler (DENH); M. Goodrich (EIUC); C. B. Barr (EMEC); F. W.
