

APPENDIX B

Classified Host-Parasite List

Within the Ixodoidea, host specificity is a real but limited phenomenon (Hoogstraal & Aeschlimann 1982). The following list documents the extent of host overlap between different species of Ixodiopsis ticks. All published records have been included, but some are based on single collections that require corroboration. The host classificatory systems followed here are those of Honacki et al. (1982) for mammals, De Schauensee (1984) for Palearctic birds, and the American Ornithologists' Union (1983) for Nearctic birds.
